THE currency cranks in Cougress did not make much in the volicy of questions and theoretical propositions which they fired at Secretary GAGE when he was before the House Committee on Banking and Corrency. Mr. Gage is clear-headed and intelligent on money questions, and makes no hesitation in saying that the party which he repre sents is in favor of keeping every dollar of the money of the country equal with

THE fact that the Republicans have not a clear majority in the Senate is going to make currency legislation iffenit. It is believed, however, that it may be possible to enact a enrrency law embodying the pian snggested hy President McKINLKY in his message, hy which the United States notes will be held in the Treasury after being reed in gold, and the National Banks permitted to increase their circulation up to the par value of the bonds deposited as seenrity for notes issued.

THE Republican policy of fostering intelligence and education among the people is now making itself apparent at Washington in the favorable conside ration which is being given to the immigration hill, which provides an stional test as one of its important features. It will be remembered that the immigration bill which passed last m, and which related largely to this subject of the intelligence of proed citizens was met with a prompt to from the Democratic President.

publican pledge of the annex n of Hawaii is being redeemed which developed in the newspaper re ports from Washington, soon after the into thin air when examined. It is ble that the President's recommenne, which are in line with the office of his party and his Republican r, President HARRISON, will be olied with. It is evident that the le have been heard from on this tion and that Congress, finding ney want the pledges of the Re-na party redeemed, will besitate no disturbance of Tariff by this Congrees. The members of both commit tees which framed the Dingley Law are confident' that it will supply all the ecessary revenue when normal conditions return, and Chairman Dingley says that even if any addition to the revenue should be needed, it would be ohtained without ripping up the Tariff. With the reduction in expenditure which the Republicans are making al along the line, it is not probable that there will be any necessity for action of this kind. The law is meeting the expectations of its friends.

An explanation of the rapid growth the Protective sentiment in the South is found in some facts recently brought to the surface by the Arkwright Club of Boston. The cotton manufac turers of that organization recently had reports from the South showing that tton mannfacturing in that section is established upon a hasis which not only enres its permanency, but an ability of the Southern manufacturers to place goods on the market at very low prices. In other mannfacturing intere progress is equally great, and with this progress has come a growth of the Protective sentiment in that section.

Keep Off the Grass!

Our people through this space have had time to be come acquainted with the excellent business methods of Mr. John I. Winter and the success with which he generally meets when once he takes hold of an enterprise.

Be it said that no one man has done more than he to draw trade to Augusta, and before a twelvemonth his influence for good will be felt in this community. He is in close touch with modern methods; he does not believe any man can successfully conduct business who sits quietly and waits for trade to come to him; that custom belongs to the horsemill and the ox team period. He realizes that this is the age of steam and electricity, of railways and telegraphs and telephones, and that the man who travels now must take the railway and not the stagecoach; that the business man must transmit his messages by telegraph or telephone and not by the tri-weekly mail-rider

Knowing these things, Mr. Winter knows also that a sign over the front door is not the only thing necessary to locate a man's business house and to keep his name before the people. He follows the footsteps of thousands who have gone before and who have grown rich thereby, and makes liberal and proper use of Printer's Ink. He knows by experience that money invested in advertising returns an hundred fold; and that is why Mr. Winter has always kept himself busy while less enterprising competitors have lamented the dullness

It will be only a few days until Mr. Winter takes up his residence permanently in this city, and the citizens, especially those engaged in commercial pursuits, owe it to themselves to extend to him that fraternal greeting so necessary in successful business life.

We take pleasure in reproducing an article from The Farm Implement News of July 1st, 1897, touching upon the sale of Deering Harvesting Machines, for which for a number of years Mr. Winter has been Agent in Mason and Bracken

HOW THEY DO IT IN KENTUCKY.

For general all-round Deering enthusiasm go to Augusta, Ky., the head ceuter of the harvesting machine trade for Bracken and Mason counties of that cenier of the harvesting machine trade for Bracken and Mason counties of that state. In the center of the town you will find as handsome store building isbeled "John I. Winier, Deering Harvesting Machines." Roter the building and you will meet a young man of pleasting personality whose face will light up with the most geunice entimelasm on the mention of the one word "Deering." John I. Winter has sold over 850 Deering machines from that one agency, and he makes it his special hastlesse to see to it that competition is completely harred out of the territory in which he sells Deering machines. On Jone 5th Mr. Winter had his around delivery of Deering machine, economical with earbestions of his annual delivery of Deering machines, accompanied with celebrations of mor than ordinary luterest, ending with a substantial picnic dinner served in a cor veulent grove. Each purchaser of a Deering machine was entitled to a seat, an there were 140 farmers seated, besides notables of the town and county, who were there to add the weight of their presence to that novel indorsement of Deering nachines. Speeches were made after the dinner, and the local papers made nuch of the event, both because it meant much to their patrons and because brought to town a larger crowd of people from outlying districts than any other event had done in the whole history of Augusta. This is only one of a large series of important deliveries made by the Deering Company in the last week
